Gavin de Becker & Associates (GDBA) protects at-risk individuals and their families.

We are seeking qualified candidates to join our Protective Security Division.

Mission. We protect people who are changing the world.

Experience. As a National Security Provider for more than forty years, GDBA has pioneered strategies and techniques for personal safety, public-figure protection, and threat assessment and management.

Resources. Our Protective Security, Threat Assessment, Investigations, Training, and Security Design divisions provide clients with an all-encompassing protective service.

Professionalism. We are passionately committed to our mission, clients, associates, and the highest standards in the industry.

Culture. Our associates are sworn to confidentiality and remain the most physically fit protectors in the industry.

Training. Creator of the FBI’s Protective Security training program is a lead instructor at our 112-acre training facility in Los Angeles.

Merit. Unlike Law Enforcement or the Military, at GDBA, performance matters more than seniority. Top-performing associates are rewarded with promotions and additional responsibility.

Career. Hundreds of current associates have thrived at GDBA for more than five years.

Earnings. At least four earning increases during a protector’s initial two years of employment. Starting earnings based upon a candidate’s experience and qualifications.

Benefits. Medical/Dental/Vision/Life Insurance, plus 401k.

Stepping-Stone. GDBA alumni currently serve in the FBI, CIA, State/Local PDs, as Heads of Corporate Security for publicly traded companies, and much more.

Backgrounds. Though a majority of our Protectors have Military, Law Enforcement, or Private Security experience, these backgrounds are not a requirement. A positive attitude, a willingness to learn, and exceptional physical fitness are requirements.
